

TORONTO - SayWeCanFly has added a handful of headline dates to the itinerary prior to the start of the upcoming tour with Metro Station and 7 Minutes in Heaven.

SayWeCanFly will stop off in Allentown, Penn., Rochester, N.Y., Barrington, Ill., and Des Moines, Iowa, before joining up with the other bands in Fresno, Calif.

"I'm really excited to actually make the drive up to California, but it's even better knowing I get to hang out with some familiar faces on the way up," said SayWeCanFly's Braden Barrie. "It's also nice to have an opportunity to get into tour mode before the Metro Station run starts. These shows are going to be super fun!"

No stranger to the road, the young singer/songwriter has crossed the country numerous times as a headliner, both before and after the release of SayWeCanFly's debut album, Between The Roses, received a worldwide release.

Barrie has been to on a fast-track to success since Between the Roses' release, beginning with a #14 spot on Billboard's Heatseekers chart, a #5 position on the iTunes singer/songwriter chart and a huge win in MTVU's "The Freshmen" competition, rocketing the video for the track "Song of the Sparrow" into regular rotation on the music channel. All the while, Barrie has kept busy playing live in America and the UK while promoting Between The Roses.

With an already loyal following thanks to Barrie's online social connection with fans, the 20-year-old Canadian is ready to introduce his music to a new set of fans.
